

«Dry run» and & start of recruitment – VEGANScreener Switzerland

In Switzerland, we secured funding to join the VEGANScreener protocol. We carried out a "dry run" to test the protocol on September 12th. The testing of the protocol was enjoyable, and we have a few minor questions left to address. Spitting out 5ml of saliva proved to be a bit challenging, but it will certainly be achievable.

Our initial group of vegan participants is scheduled for clinical examinations on September 19th. We plan to begin with one examination day per week, examining three participants each day. However, we anticipate increasing this to four or five participants per day in the near future.

The responsibility for overseeing the scientific project is shared between Dr. Isabelle Herter and Dr. Leonie Bogl. Dr. Herter is in charge of the practical organization at ETH Zurich. Our motivated team also includes study nurses, one MSc student, and two nutritionists.

We are looking forward to this collaboration with the VEGANScreener consortium.
